Thoughts for Prayer SHALOM

Grace is not a prize for sanctity and perfection, but a gracious gift to those in need.

Peter had no reason to be hopeful when he was thrown into prison – very few people left the prison alive. But he had his fervent faith in the Lord Jesus – and sure enough, an angel came to his rescue and set him free. We will probably not experience so dramatic a rescue from our own stressful situations, but we should nonetheless be assured that God is always there for us. When we face life’s difficulties and heartbreaks our faith sometimes goes out of the window. In reality, that is when it should be the strongest. God never turns His back on us.

When Jesus asked his disciples what people are saying about his identity most of them merely repeated what they had heard on the street and in the marketplace – popular opinion. Peter was uncharacteristically silent, and moved by the Spirit within, confessed that Jesus was the Messiah and Son of the Living God. His response and his openness to revelation won him great honour, but it later became obvious that he was very human and not always worthy of it. That should not upset us; grace is not a prize for sanctity and perfection, but a gracious gift to those in need.

Apostle Peter, who confesses his faith in Jesus as the Christ, is entrusted with the charge of shepherding the Church. Later, persecuted for his faith, he sometimes experiences the closeness of the sheep entrusted to his care. All the same, he experiences that the Lord is with him and works in and through him in thick and thin. Paul, looking back at his turbulent life of an apostle, sees it as a battle, as a race, a responsibility faithfully assumed and carried out. He too experiences the closeness of the Lord as being always at his side and looks forward to receive the just reward.

Lord, may my weaknesses become doors for Your grace.

Parishioners are invited to assist in this work of “Reaching Out” by extending this invitation to those in the family or work place who are facing disappointments, rejection, loneliness, or any other forms of serious sufferings and may not even come to church anymore. These talks would lead them to find the answers they seek and lead them to rediscover peace and joy in life again.

The talks will be conducted at the Conference Room above the Blessed Sacrament Chapel, Mondays and Thursdays, 8.00pm to 9.00pm, starting this Monday, 30th June 2014. All are welcome.
