Jesus had just silenced the Sadducees who had tried to catch Him out with a problem to which they believed He had no answer. Now it was the turn of the Pharisees. They came to Him in a group with a question they felt He would answer wrongly. They wanted to know what He thought was the greatest commandment of love. Do we really believe this?

Care of. Do we really believe this?

Jesus said: ‘You must love the Lord your God with all your heart, all your soul, and all your strength.’ Commenting on this, the teacher of the law asked him, ‘And second?’ ‘You must love your neighbour as yourself.’

In the commandment of love are contained in these two statements. They asked for one piece of law but Jesus gave them two. For him, though, they are one – love of God and love of brothers and sisters cannot be separated. And in keeping them everything else is taken care of. Do we really believe this?

Help me, Lord, to love You and to love all those around me as You love them.
