Thoughts for Prayer: SHALOM

A glance at today’s first reading shows us that we compare the kingdom to the growth of a tree. Ezekiel provides an obvious background to the Gospel ‘mustard seed’. The parable of the mustard seed stresses the great growth of the kingdom from small beginnings. From a very small seed, though not the tiniest, we can get a plant twelve feet high. The image of branches providing room for the nesting and shelter of birds occur not only in our first reading, but also in Ezek. 31:3-9, and Dan. 4:10-22. The kingdom will grow from humble beginning to a worldwide presence embracing all nations.

The verses which conclude today’s Gospel state clearly that the parables do not contain the complete explanation of the mystery (God’s saving plan for men). The disciples of Jesus were to hear privately that the fulfillment of messianic promise had already begun in the complete explanation of the mystery (God’s saving plan for men). The disciples of Jesus were to hear privately that the fulfillment of messianic promise had already begun in the life-work of Jesus.

This also refers to the action of grace in us. God silently works a transformation in each of us. Thanks, O Lord.

It is good to give you thanks, O Lord.

Lord, let me be transformed by Your Word.
