Thoughts for prayers SHALOM

In the Letters of St Paul, the phrase “the body of Christ” again and again stands for the Church; it does so, we see, in 1 Corinthians 12: 1-31. Paul has just been rebuking those, who with their divisions and their class distinctions, divide the Church; so this may mean that anyone who eats and drinks unworthily has never realized that the whole Church is the body of Christ and is at variance with his brother. Everyone in whose heart there is hatred, bitterness and contempt against another person, eats and drinks unworthily. If he comes to the table of our Lord. The feeding of the five thousand in the Gospel tells us many things. Jesus was concerned that men were hungry. It would be most interesting to work out how much time Jesus spent, not talking, but easing men’s pain and satisfying their hunger. He still describes a poet the procession of Corpus Christi. According to the story we read today, Jesus has only five loaves and two fish to feed the crowd. The scene takes on another meaning when the look and gestures of Christ seem to be taken from the Last Supper: he raised his eyes to heaven, he blessed the bread, broke it and gave it ... In those bread that took away hunger portends the promise of the Eucharistic bread that will free man from all hunger.

Lord, grant us the grace that our deeds may speak louder than our words and that we may live our lives in solidarity with the others.
